Title of Study: Exploring the Role of Film in Transmitting Nigerian Cultural Heritage: A Case Study of Selected Post-2010 Nollywood Productions

Researcher: Francis Arinze

Date: January 2026

Purpose of the Study: This questionnaire is designed to gather primary data on audience perceptions regarding how Nollywood films transmit Nigerian cultural heritage. It focuses on three selected films: The Wedding Party (2016), Lionheart (2018), and Half of a Yellow Sun (2013). The study aligns with Cultural Transmission Theory and Postcolonial Hybridity Theory, addressing challenges such as stereotyping, linguistic erosion, and commercial distortions. The questions are structured to directly address the research questions:

1. How do films portray key components of Nigerian cultural heritage?
2. What are the challenges faced by filmmakers in the transmission of cultural heritage in Nigeria?
3. How do Nigerian audiences perceive the representation of cultural heritage in Nigeria?

Eligibility: Respondents should be 18 years or older and have some familiarity with Nollywood films, preferably having watched at least one of the selected films. Target sample includes Nigerian residents and diaspora members.

Voluntary Participation and Confidentiality: Your participation is voluntary. You may withdraw at any time without consequence. Responses are anonymous; no identifying information (e.g., name, email) will be collected. Data will be used solely for academic purposes and stored securely in compliance with ethical standards. Aggregated results may be published in the thesis or academic journals.

Section A: Demographic Profile
